PATHWAYS TO A RESEARCH CAREER

• Increased support for practitioners in social care to be more research minded and undertake action research, support the delivery of research projects, and undertake service evaluations within their own organisations

• What about those who want to develop a research career further?

• Historically there has been relatively few opportunities in a landscape that isn’t easy to navigate and with barriers to access (often financial)

• Professional doctorates (predominantly self-funded); doctoral studentships (stipends often much less than salary); lack of intermediate steps
PATHWAYS TO A RESEARCH CAREER

- The new personal awards programme through the Health and Research Wales Faculty
- Research Training Award - course fees and buy out of one day a week to attend a masters level research methods-based course.
- Emerging Researcher Award – a first steps award providing funding to buy out time for 2 days a week for up to 2 years
- Doctoral Fellowship awards – funding to undertake a full-time PhD covering course fees and full salary replacement – increased capacity in terms of places.
PATHWAYS TO A RESEARCH CAREER

• These sit within a wider programme of awards that provide support at various stages of a research career – post doctoral fellowships, advancing researcher awards, personal accelerator awards.

• Funding of Welsh social care research infrastructure – CASCADE, CARE, CADR.

• Providing a route through not historically available to those wanting to be social care researchers in Wales.
